A Report from the 21st Century Commission
on the Future of Community Colleges

The Commission believes that community colleges must change their institutional characteristics as follows:

From a focus on student access to a focus on access and student success.

From low rates of student success to high rates of student success.

From individual faculty prerogative to collective responsibility for student success.

From a culture of isolation to a culture of collaboration.

From a focus on teaching to a focus on learning.

The evidence on student success in community colleges is distressing.

“Students don’t do optional.”

Almost a third (30%) of entering students do not attend orientation and most avoid online orientation;

about 90% indicate that academic planning and advising is important to them, yet less than a third of entering students report that a college advisor helped them set academic goals and create a plan for achieving them;

and although a large majority of entering students are underprepared for college-level work, 76% never use tutoring services.

Campus Planning Considerations

Traffic Flow / Access

Where will students come from?

Visibility / Image

How will students find the Center?

Connectivity to Other Student Service Functions

Maintain “One-Stop” concept as much as possible.

Diversity of Learning Environments

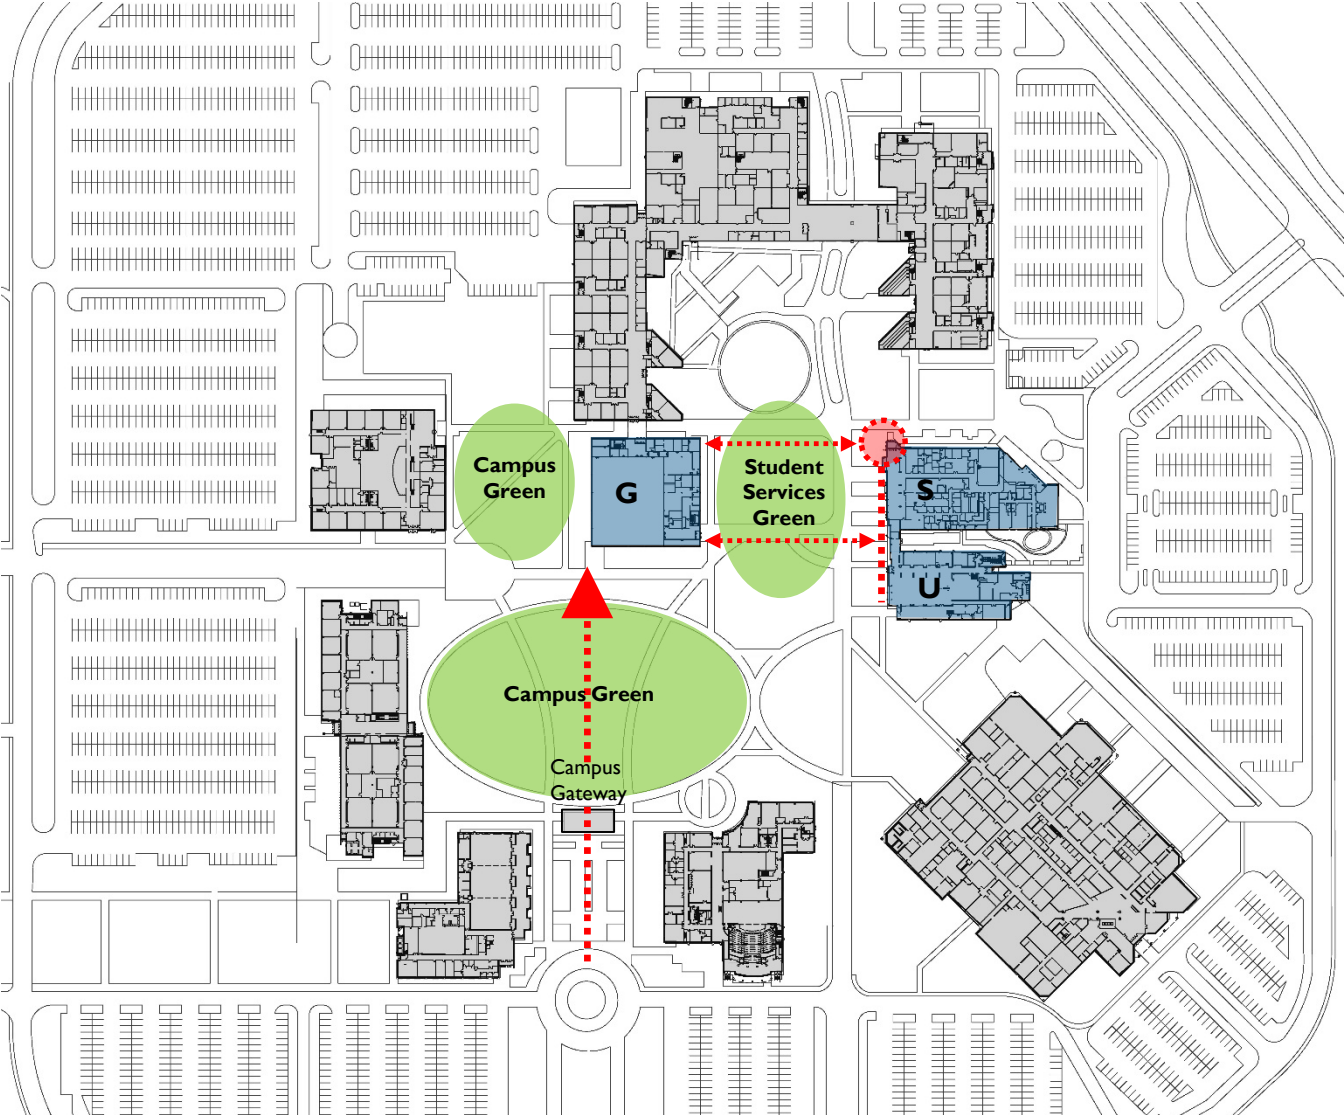

Encourage student engagement.

Continue to Enhance Campus Environment

Strengthen the Campus Green.
