2020-2021 Dependency Status Appeal

For Office Use Only
Approved _____ Denied _____ Date _____

Please read carefully before continuing:

Federal regulations require that students under the age of 24 file the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) using the financial information for themselves and their parent(s).

A dependency status appeal will only be considered for those students that have mitigating circumstances and can prove: 1) that their income is sufficient to be self-supporting and, 2) that there is a valid reason why their parent should not be expected to make their federally expected contribution to the student’s educational costs.

The following situations are not, by themselves, sufficient reasons to grant an appeal:

- *Your parents are unwilling to share financial information on the FAFSA
- *You and your parents do not “get along”
- *Your parents refuse to contribute to your college expenses
- *You do not live with your parents
